COST RELATED TO THE PROGRAM

All Participants eligible for the Fairborn Municipal Drug Court must have some form of medical insurance in order to be able to obtain the medication. Indigent clients may be covered at the cost of outside grants or local board funding, or through internal funds. These concerns should have already been addressed with the treatment team. The Court will work closely with the treatment providers, ensuring that all participants receive quality chemical dependency and mental health treatment.

NON-ADVERSARIAL APPROACH

The FMDC incorporates a non-adversarial approach. The treatment team works together to identify needs of each participant. The Court recognizes the prosecutor's distinct role in pursuing justice and protecting public safety and victim's rights. The prosecutor helps identify potential participants for the FMDC.

The Court recognizes the defense counsel's distinct role in preserving the constitutional rights of the drug court participant, the participant's right to request the attendance of defense counsel during the portion of the treatment team meeting concerning their participation, and the participant's right to a detailed, written Participation Agreement and Participant Handbook outlining the requirements and process of the Drug Court. The defense counsel is not an active member of the treatment team unless requested by the participant. This information is also included in the Fairborn Municipal Drug Court Handbook.

The FMDC does not deny admission based on race, color, religion, gender, sexual orientation, national origin, ancestry, age, citizenship, marital status, veteran's status, or any disability. The treatment team consults a doctor on the participant's medical needs and whether that client would be appropriate for any medical assisted treatment.
